1. Secondary Irish Language school - Coláiste Feirste

Coláiste Feirste is the only secondary-level Irish-medium school in Belfast, Northern Ireland. It’s a co-educational, all-ability, comprehensive school and as such it embraces tolerance and welcomes diversity. The school seeks to cultivate confidence and self-assertiveness in its pupils allowing them to express fully their own identity and culture. Our staff seeks to foster young people who will in the future play active, constructive, progressive roles in our community and in society as a whole. We hope to instil in them the values necessary to be responsible parents, workers, leaders and contributing members of society in the future.

Our school endeavours to provide an educational service which enables pupils to obtain qualifications, knowledge, experiences and necessary life skills. We believe that every pupil has the ability to reach his/her full potential with regard to social, personal and educational development. We believe that the pupil, parents, teachers and school management are collectively responsible for this aim and must work together to achieve it.

We expect that parents will support and assist the teachers in upholding the aims and ethos of the school.

2. Millennium Integrated Primary School and Nursery

We are an integrated Primary school with 438 pupils ranging from 3-11. We have 53 staff as well. We opened in the year 2000 with 8 pupils and were a school founded by parents wanting their children to be educated in an inclusive environment regardless of religious background. Today we pride ourselves on being an all ability school celebrating everyone with a strong emphasis on inclusion. Children are at the heart of our school.
